Kappa Nu

The Kappa Nu Society had its monthly meeting Wednesday night, January 14. Mr. Chase was on the program and gave a most inspiring talk. Mr. Chase gave a few very hints and the rest of the talk was made up of a talk on personal life.

The meeting was a full one for each and every member. It was one of the best.

The Junto

The first meeting of the Junto was the morning, was held Monday night, January 11, at 7:30. Most of the matter taken up was of a business nature. In an election of long-term members, the following were selected: Gene Stanford, C. P. Clayton, Paul Morris Pitts, Jr., J. A. Setliffe, and George C. Rowlett. Interest in this organization is rapidly gaining momentum, and it is believed that the club will prove to be really worth while. The next meeting was held Monday, January 18.

By a survey of a girls' dormitory of a senior standard college, it was found that "Good Housekeeping" took the lead of the magazines preferred, "Modern Screen" held the list found in the rooms, "American," "Photograph," and "McCall's" were also very popular. It was interesting to note that not a single girl mentioned "True Story," "Cardinal & Cream."

As Gleaned From The Orange and White

The new infirmary, as modern and complete as any public hospital, has been completed and put into service. Dr. Wilhelm, who is known to many of our students, is in charge. This combination, an excellent doctor, a first class hospital and nurses who are as friendly and efficient as our own Mrs. Johnson, might well tempt any student to take an inventory of himself and see if he doesn't feel "ok."

Three professors of U. T. were honored by being selected to read papers at the annual convention of the National Mod in Language Association. Dr. Burke's paper was entitled, "Spencer's Nine Lost Comedies Again!" Dr. Thaler's dealt with "The Original Madyollho," and Dr. Hodges was upon "Congreve's Correspondence."

Registration for the new quarter held its own with withdrawals. Two hundred and fifty new students have entered the college and about an equal number have left.

Edith Cantor, famous comedian, says that when he's elected president of the U. S. A. he is going to prohibit pies, clothes and furniture. He says, "Look what would happen if we had all these prohibitions at one time. A man decides to throw a wild party; he agrees to furnish the table, providing his guests each bring their own chairs; and they must all come fully dressed. Imagine! They're going to wear overcoats, sit on chairs, and eat pie! They're breaking through at one time! Each guest arrives in a big auto with a naked footman and chauffeur to throw the police off the scent. They deliver a trunk upstairs; and out of the trunk appears the guest, fully clothed, carrying his own camp chair! Each week new prohibitions are enforced, until we get to the point where nobody is allowed to do anything, and everybody is doing everything and after all, that's prosperity!"

He says, "and Rob! Rob! Rob! for a while! How will you vote?"

Tuba's Oompah

(With Apologies to Berne)
(Read Aloud in a Hesitant Bass Voice)

Hello Foks. Again you are about to read words emanating from the sawdust and stub pencil of the old master (of pots and pans) in the kitchen of the Kollege Inn at the intersection of St. Charles Avenue and Jeptha Road, on the outskirts of the University campus.

Today (thought for you in China) we will discuss a problem of prime importance to all of us, The Divorce question.

It was forcibly brought to the forefront of old Tuba's mind when I learned that proceedings are, and have been, under way for some time, instigated by Squaw Ravin Crazy, for a permanent separation from me. I have been fearing such a thing for some time, in fact, it has been going on since a certain cave man from the mountains of East Tennessee put in his appearance here last fall. He and the Squaw have been meeting each other regularly secretly for some time. I should have known something like this was going on for the Squaw of late has acted coldly, and publicly rebuked me for indulging in my favorite pastime, "nibbling her ear."

"I'll hand it to this 'raw-boned giant of the hills,' he 'sho has a way with wimmin.'" My inquiring mind was startled into action to find out who the culprit was who stole the affections of the Squaw, when I without their knowledge espied them under the spreading eucalyptus tree holding hands.

It looks as though in spite of my superfluous use of hair oil, talcum powder, listerine, perfume, and other hardware, I don't appeal to her any longer. Well, such is life: "To have and to hold today to divorce tomorrow."

Get your money's worth you that sent wedding present. Come to court and hear the dirt of the family doings dug up.

TUBA.

"I Found A Million Dollar Baby"

It was a cold December shower;
It was a lucky sheltering door;
I met a sweet capricious baby in the Co-op Book Store.
I guess it lasted for an hour;
I hung around for many more;
Around the nice delicious baby from the Co-op Book Store.
She was selling nothing, but could she make those eyes? (um,uh!)
I kept on buying nothing, 'till Mr.
Gat got wise.
Incidentally! (Accidentally or otherwise)
If you should run into a shower just step inside the dormitory, and meet the million dollar baby
from the Co-op Book Store.

NOBLE'S GAMBOGE OWL'S ANNA

The above picture, Noble's Gamboge Owl's Anna, loved by Mr. B. T. Serings of Gibson County, and owned by the University of Tennessee Junior College, is the new state champion Jersey cow in the 30-day class, according to figures recently released by The American Jersey Cattle Club. This cow produced 18,105 pounds of milk and 113.95 pounds of butterfat, equivalent to 895 pounds of butter in 10 months. The Junior College has several other Jerseys that are making very creditable records.

Arlington Cemetery Mansion

The Arlington Cemetery Mansion, which has been the home of the Arlington Cemetery Association since 1900, is a fine example of the old-time architecture. A great deal of the original furniture could not be seen, as it had been removed. Most of the furniture has been replaced. It is a very nice place for a party and is open to the public.

The Size of An Electron

By EDWARD SCHMIDT

When you turn on an electric light or throw a switch to any of the many household appliances; when you listen to a "talkie;" when you talk with a friend on the telephone; when a wireless message circles the globe; and when an airplane is safely guided through the air from the ground, we are making use of the aid of extremely small, rapidly moving particles.

These particles travel with the speed of light. At this speed a radio wave would encircle the globe in one-seventh of a second. If the human voice could be heard around the world it would require between thirty and forty hours for the sound to reach the speaker.

What is the ultimate constituent of matter? The electron, the ultimate building block of electricity, is the smallest known particle of matter, whatever there is electricity it is due to the flow of electrons.

How large is an electron? It has been calculated that the electron is about one-thirtieth billionth of an inch in diameter. The space occupied by forty billion electrons placed side by side would not equal the width of a human hair. If a gram, about a hundredth of an ounce, of electrons could be collected and placed in a row, side by side, the row would be long enough to reach the sun and back 15 times.

The number of electrons passing through an ordinary electric light bulb every second is about three followed by eighteen zeros. In the quantity of electricity for which you pay your bills there are 230 trillion electrons.

To make this somewhat understandable, if all the people in the United States would undertake the task of counting these electrons, and each person would agree to count at the rate of one electron and one twelve-hundredths of an electron, it would require about four hundred years to do the task.

U.T.J.C.

Extend Your Life

It is a well known fact that the life of a person is determined by the number of electrons in the body. The more electrons, the longer the life.

Poem Seen On A
Drug Store Window

What is the dearest thing on earth,
That fills my soul with joy and mirth?

My Yo-Yo.

What takes the place of my best girl,
Is treasured more than any pearl,
And sets my senses in a whirl?

My Yo-Yo.

What keeps me busy day and night
And makes me exercise with might?

My Yo-Yo.

All day I work my arm it seems,
Till when I'm sleeping, in my dream

I Yo-Yo.

And in the morn when I awake
Before my breakfast I will take

My Yo-Yo.

And start to sling it in and out,
Above my head and all about,
Until my family curses out

My Yo-Yo.

I practice along the busy street,
And show to every one I meet

My Yo-Yo.

I think it is the grandest thing,
My painted top and great long string,
And they all stop to watch me fling

My Yo-Yo.

I sling it out and reel it in,
The girls all like to see me spin

My Yo-Yo.

They're lauding my dexterity,
They all are running after me;
But all they want is just to see

My Yo-Yo.

I'll clasp it tightly to my breast,
And when I take my final rest
Till all I desire to possess

My Yo-Yo.
